DIME SAVINGS BANK

DIME SAVINGS BANK'S HALF CENTURY

Fifty years ago on the morning of September 27th, the Dime Savings bank of this city opened its doors for the first time. By the end of the day the bank had taken in $1,000. Francis J. Leavens, president of the bank, told his guests at a half century anniversary dinner he gave Friday evening at the Wauregan house, and ever since then had continued to grow steadily and satisfactorily as a good child or a good bank should.

When the bank began business it was in the Dr. Cassidy building on Main street, where the Singer sewing machine office now is, but after a few months there it moved to the building on Main street which it has occupied ever since, the front remaining the same as it was in 1869, but an addition has been built on the rear.

In the artistic golden anniversary souvenir used as place cards at the banquet the bank statement of September 26, 1869, was given as follows:

Assets—Paid, Hope and Courage. Liabilities—Sundry bills for blank books, and stationery, amount unknown.

In contrast was given the statement of September 10, 1919:

Assets—As above plus a satisfactory balance of $1,280,380.73.

Liabilities—Total deposits, $3,509,845.82; interest, surplus and profit and losses, $180,435.14. Liberty loan subscribers, $694,547. Total liabilities $3,766,230.19.

The following were the officers of the bank when it opened fifty years ago:

President, E. R. Thompson; vice presidents, Amasa C. Hall, H. H. Osgood, W. R. Austin; directors, Horace Whitaker, James Burnett, Wm. C. Osgood, A. S. Bolles, G. A. Jones, Jr., C. T. Palmer, E. N. Gibbs, F. J. Leavens; attorney, A. S. Bolles; secretary and treasurer, George D. Colt.

Of the original incorporators of the bank only Mr. Leavens and A. S. Bolles, now of Philadelphia, are still living, while Mr. Leavens has the distinction of being the only one of the original men who still is connected with the bank. Mr. Bolles was one of the dinner guests Friday evening, having come here especially for the anniversary.

Guests were laid for 45 and the guests included representatives of the other banks in the city. Treasurer Costello Lippitt and Assistant Treasurer Charles R. Butts of the Norwich Savings Society, President W. H. Allen of the Uncas National Bank, Cashier N. A. Gibbs of the Thames National Bank, President J. C. Osgood of the Cheshire Savings bank and Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of the United Congregational church. The guests included also the present officers of the Dime bank, though there were four or five absentees from the following list:

Presidents, Gardiner Greene, Reuben S. Bartlett, N. Douglas Sevin, directors, Frank L. Woodward, William B. Young, E. F. Bishop, Shepard B. Palmer, Walter F. Lester, Charles H. Phelps, Edmund W. Perkins, Jac. C. Henderson, treasurer, Frank L. Woodward, secretary and assistant treasurer, John H. Perkins.

than Brewster, M. M. Whittemore, J. Frank Clark, Frank H. Pullen, Wallace S. Ellis, Charles H. Phelps, Chas. J. Carver, N. Douglas Sevin, Archibald S. Spaulding, William B. Young, B. P. Bishop, Albert S. Comstock, Walton C. Davenport, Maxton Holmes, Shepard E. Palmer, C. Leslie Hopkins, John H. Perkins, Walter F. Lester, Otto E. Wulf, Frank A. Bill, Arthur L. Pease, William B. Birge, Edmund W. Perkins, James C. Henderson, Royal G. Holmes, Franklin H. Brown, Arthur E. Story, Russell P. Smith, Gordon L. Bidwell, Lucius Briggs, James L. Crawford, Herbert B. Cary, F. B. Ricketson, Arthur E. Sherman, Charles A. Saxton, Charles D. Greenman.

John R. Tarrant, Miss Gladys Rice, Miss L. Nellie Sherer and Hans Rasmussen of the bank staff and Noah treasurer of the Savings Bank of Britain, were also guests of the evening.

President Leavens Speaks.

Rev. Mr. Abbott offered grace before the banquet was served and in opening the most grand and exercises.

Mr. Leavens spoke of the starting of the bank by Amasa C. Hall, his uncle, in Shetucket street, the financial center of the city then, the new bank was looked upon as a joke and one of the big financial men gave it six months to live. But the big man's bank has prospered, Mr. Leavens referred humorously to various incidents of the early years and introduced Mr. Bolles as the next speaker.

Mr. Bolles also spoke reminiscently in a pleasant vein, referring to some of the early years of the bank.

Norwich Bulletin and wrote editorials on financial matters that stirred up the state legislature.

Treasurer Woodward Speaks.

In introducing Treasurer Frank L. Woodward for a few brief remarks, Mr. Leavens mentioned that he came to the Dime from the Cheshire 41 years ago and had been with them ever since.

In the course of his remarks, Mr. Woodward called attention to the fact that Mr. Leavens had insisted on bearing the expenses of the anniversary banquet himself as he would not use the money of the institution for it. He bore testimony to the president's untiring work in the interests of the bank and his prosperity was due in large measure to him. He mentioned its four presidents, E. R. Thompson, 1869 to 1893; H. H. Osgood, 1893 to 1909; J. Hunt Smith, 1909 to 1909, and P. J. Leavens from 1909 to the present time. It has also had but four cashiers—George D. Colt, 1869 to 1878; W. C. Abbott, 1878 to 1881; J. Hunt Smith, 1881 to 1888, and Mr. Woodward, 1888 to the present. The bank has also had but 16 permanent employees of which Mr. Perkins has been with them 31 years.

Judge Gardiner Greene, first vice president, followed with a short address, which was listened to with close attention and is given below.

Treasurer Costello Lippitt, 35 years with the bank, arrived at 10:30 and introduced as the dean of the banking fraternity of the city, was the final speaker with congratulatory words for
